

CJHA Honour Roll Meghan Black

Meghan grew up on a small commercial cattle operation in Bloomfield, New Brunswick.

On top of the commercial operation Meghan assists her father, Dale, with managing Bird's Hill Herefords. Her love of the Hereford breed and the Canadian Junior Hereford Association is apparent to anyone that meets her.

Meghan began her post secondary schooling with Mount Allison University, where she studied Biology. After her second year, Meghan transferred to the Nova Scotia Agriculture College to major in Animal Science because her heart is in agriculture. She plans on establishing a Hereford herd of her own. The CJHA Heifer Lottery project assisted in the start of her own herd with the acquisition of her first Hereford, Thunderbrook Shenanigans 4Y.

Meghan has been an active member of the CJHA for the last 6 years. Meghan has attended multiple Bonanzas all across Canada and she has served as President for the CJHA National Council for the last year. Meghan has been heavily involved in many of the projects which the CJHA supports every year, including the CJHA Auction, the Calendar and the Semen Donation program. Meghan is very fond of the Heifer Lottery project which assisted her with buying her first Hereford.

Recently Meghan attended the U.S. National Junior Hereford show as a CJHA Hereford Ambassador, to assist with the administration of that show. Meghan is very involved with 4-H, with projects such as Beef Heifer and Steer, Dairy, Foods and Crafts. Meghan had the privilege to represent New Brunswick at the National Public Speaking Competition in Regina. Currently Meghan is one of the leaders for the Nova Scotia Agricultural College's Judging Team.

Meghan is very involved with and committed to the CJHA and the Hereford breed.
